Declaration of compliance CSRD (Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive)

The CSRD (Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive) is an EU directive that requires companies to publish detailed reports on their sustainability practices. Starting in 2025, companies in certain size categories and with public interest must disclose comprehensive information on Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) aspects. The goal of the CSRD is to create more transparency and comparability regarding sustainable business practices, providing investors and other stakeholders with a solid decision-making basis.

Linnemann GmbH is not subject to the reporting obligations of the CSRD due to its size and legal form. However, consciously acting sustainably is a core principle of the company. For this reason, Linnemann GmbH regularly considers issues such as resources, environment, and society as part of its management reviews. These reviews are conducted within the framework of the certified quality management system according to DIN EN ISO 9001:2025. The self-set goals are continuously monitored, and, if necessary, actions are defined and implemented.

The goal of Linnemann GmbH is to use all the resources required for its operations – both natural and social in origin – in a way that does not limit the ability of future generations to act freely.
